WE NOMINATE

Francis Gerald Clark, tireless, 38-year old General Secretary of the Princeton and Mercer County Young Men's Christian Association, whose work over the course of a year brings him into close contact with nearly one-tenth of this booming community's population. Realizing, more acutely than nine out of ten laymen, what a unique and wonderful thing a human personality is, regardless of economic status, racial origin and religion, Clark is an unusual professional in the social service field in that his enthusiasm for "doing good" is tempered by his understanding of what can be accomplished with limited means in a given span of time.

The son of a florist in Scranton, Pa., Clark traces his first connection with the Y.M.C.A. back to his underclass years at Scranton's Central High School where he discovered an intense interest in "individuals, their problems, their needs and their responses to those who willingly work with them." He managed the school football team, advised a Hi-Y Club, did some cub reporting—without pay—for a daily newspaper, presided over the county Inter-Church Youth Council and decided that "my best contribution to serving society was to spend my life serving others."

His graduation from school coincided with the flowering of "Hoover Prosperity" and for two years he assisted in the Health Department of his alma mater, accumulating the wherewithal needed for freshman year at college. His record at Springfield was outstanding. Junior year he spent at the Y.M.C.A. School, Geneva, Switzerland, and later won a graduate scholarship for the study of history and international relations at Clark University.

The post-college trail led to Wilmington, Del., then to a second tour of European duty, assisting the Y.M.C.A. World's Committee at Geneva. Finally, in 1943, he was appointed to his Princeton post, a position to which he frequently devotes 14-to-16 hours a day. An analysis of his current assignment reveals that 55 per cent of his time is invested in actual program participation, ranging from supervision of recreational activities to individual counselling; that one of every five hours goes to organizational spadework, 10 per cent to routine administration, another 10 per cent to fund-raising and the remaining five per cent to publicity and public relations.

For striving all 52 weeks, year-in and year-out, to implement the ideals of democratic brotherhood, lauded throughout the United States this past week as the nation observed Brotherhood Week; for staunchly defending human rights and promoting inter-group brotherhood; for helping the community to see that the strength of tomorrow lies in the youth of today; he is TOWN TOPICS' candidate for Portrait Painted? Somewhat more than 100 Princetonians attended the meeting held Tuesday night to discuss the value of a city manager for Princeton. As expected, the issue died virtually without a good word from the floor; but not exactly as planned, they heard a debate over several municipal issues by Mayor Morgan and his immediate predecessor, Dr. Charles R. Erdman, Jr.

Disagreement existed principally over the municipality's accomplishments in the past decade (which paralleled most of Dr. Erdman's administration) and covered such topics as housing, construction of a through street to match Nassau, and economy measures effected. The debate was both extemporaneous and interesting.

Dr. Erdman, past-master in municipal finance, scored heavily against the city manager plan mid-way through the evening. Carl J. Henrikson of Teaneck, whose community adopted this form of government some 15 years ago, spoke glowingly of its merits. But the former Republican mayor came up with the fact that from 1936 to 1945, the city manager government in Teaneck had required a tax increase for local purposes from 2.06 to 2.37; during the same time, councilmanic (and Dr. Erdman's) government had effected a decrease in Princeton from 1.26 to 1.10.

THIS BALANCE DOES NOT SHOW ON OUR BOOKS

The careful balance which must always be maintained between service to our customers on one side and, on the other, safety of funds entrusted to our care, is something which does not show in figures on our books. But it enters into every transaction, particularly loans.

We encourage and invite loans—and when an applicant views his request from the standpoint of the depositors whose money he will be using, he can be assured that we will give him every possible consideration which is consistent with our obligation to our other customers.

That is the kind of a bank he wants to do business with—either as a borrower or a depositor or both.

30th Anniversary. To anniversary-conscious Princeton, the exhibition of his work by Orren Jack Turner, nationally-known photographer, should be by no means the least interesting event of the year. Admittedly photography-conscious, we were fascinated by our visit to his studio; but even those who care nothing for the art itself would have a wonderful time if faces, people and intriguing personal reminiscences about famous figures are of interest to them.

The last angle may not be as easy to cover as the first two—we were lucky enough to catch Mr. Turner in what we presume (having laid siege for several days) was one of his rare un-busy moments. The story brought on by the portrait of an innocent and aristocratic appearing Mrs. Hall of the famous Hall-Mills murder case was one of the high spots. Mr. Turner's connection with the affair was, we hasten to assure you, solely that of the photographer who was selected by Mrs. Hall to counteract pictures in the newspapers. These, she apparently was convinced, made her look "like a convict."

The many well-known faces, artistically and revealingly photographed, which line the walls are interesting for themselves and for the somewhat startling fact that they have all, at one time or another in the last 30 years, visited Princeton. Among them are Cardinal Mercier, Marshal Foch, President Harding, Sir Rabindranath Tagore, Bliss Carmen, Dr. Lorenz, Princess Louise of Sweden, Agnes Morehead and Prince Paul of Greece. Others include Princeton's own contributions to "Who's Who": Professor Einstein (photographed on three of Mr. Turner's anniversaries), Drs. Hibben and Dodds, Senator H.

THERE IS

A house with at least 8 rooms and 2 baths, completely or partially furnished, in that area of Princeton, west of Bayard Lane and preferably North of Stockton Street, that a thoroughly reliable client, a most desirable tenant, would lease for two years, beginning July, August or September 1, 1947.

If you are that owner who owns and would lease that house meeting the outlined requirements, please advise

Alexander Smith and many more.

Mr. Turner's first portrait (taken half an hour after his doors were opened for business) is one small Joseph Ringwalt, who is there again at the ages of five, ten and upon graduation from Princeton. His wife and young children will join him on the studio walls shortly, all of which proves that photography and tradition can go hand in hand.

Technically speaking, a special process developed and perfected by Mr. Turner is specially worthy of mention. Var-

Year's Day proposal had developed all the buoyancy of a lead balloon, Mayor Morgan spoke frankly and with sincerity that did him much credit. He pleaded hard for adoption of the plan: to give the town a full-time executive to supervise its $280,000 budget, to permit a fairer selection of councilmen by elimination of the two-party system, "to build a town that stands at the top of the roster, not only in Moody's financial rating, but in service to all its citizens without regard to race, color or creed."

Concluded the 33-year old mayor (who took office two years ago on the crest of a major political upset): "I grind no axe this evening. If anything, through my espousal of this cause and some of my utterances tonight, I have painted a very life-like 'Portrait of a Young Man at the Close of His Political Career.'"

Miscellany. Princeton Township's anticipated tax rate of 3.38, an increase of no more than 11 points over 1946, is a credit to that municipality's ad-

News of the Theatres

The Playhouse

13 Rue Madeleine (Fri., Sat.) casts James Cagney as the head of a band of secret agents assigned to foil Nazi efforts prior to D-Day. They move from Washington to London to Normandy in a sequence of events that is fast but occasionally unconvincing.

California (Sun. through Wed.) plunges wholeheartedly and gaudily into the oft-told tale of the 1848 gold rush to that once-fabulous territory. It's pure Hollywood drama, with most of its strong points and all of its unoriginality. Ray Milland, Barbara Stanwyck, Barry Fitzgerald.

The Man I Love (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) is an underworld drama spun in a nightclub setting, which permits Ida Lupino to do considerable blues singing. She loves a member of the band who's still in love with his socialite ex-wife, and thereby, you are led to believe, hangs a plot. Music and acting are better than the story.

The Garden

Love Laughs at Andy Hardy (Fri., Sat.) sets Mickey Rooney to familiar antics in this decade-old series that has such appeal as the reflection of an ideal American family. Mickey, always a fine actor, has romantic troubles by the barrelful when Bonita Granville turns him down for an elderly millionaire. Frequently amusing.

Rage in Heaven (All Week), first released in March, 1941, is a frequently stark psychological melodrama that delves into the workings of a paranoid mind. Robert Montgomery marries Ingrid Bergman, then plots and carries out his own death so that it will implicate his best friend. A good film.

"Magic Skin" Dolls. If you have maternal small daughters who insist that each part of their daily routine goes for Dolly too, you know what happens to said doll (and said daughter's heart) when she has been put through a bath. The solution to this quick way of finishing off dolls is at The Little Clothesline in the form of these "Magic Skin" productions.

With entire bodies made of soft, skin-like rubber, they can be given those baths and emerge unscathed and sparkling. The heads are not supposed to be washed, but neither are their owner's in every bath, and we see possibilities for putting that point across. If you can, you will have a doll that is worth the not-inexpensive price of $5.75 or $8.95, depending on size, because she will outlast the normal run of them by many months, in addition to staying clean. The bonnets and dresses in which the "Magic Skins" come are sweet, but the pieces de resistance are the cotton-knit shirts and panties, of which we should like to be able to buy exact duplicates in sizes 2 and up.
